Coral Gables
The People
Behind the Place
OUR NEW HOTEL

The above is a picture of "Leiendecker's Inn" as it will look when completed, the cut being made from the architect's drawings. Mr. Leiendecker can give no information regarding the interior arrangement of the house, as he has not as yet received the complete plans, but, judging from the exterior, it will be "all right" in every particular. This building occupies one of the best locations for a hotel in the town, and we are sure that under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Leiendecker it will soon become very popular. There will probably be as much room as there was in the hotel that burned last spring, if not more, and the building will be one that any town might well be proud of.

TOM JOHNSON
Owner of Old Crow
We came up here and checked on it and as a matter of record we bought the Old Crow here. As I said before it was the students themselves that told me about Saugatuck. They were coming here long before I ever did. I think that there is a lot of pros and cons about students coming here. We cater to the students in East Lansing - it is about 90% of our business. In the seven years I have been here I have seen a lot of crowds, big crowds, but very little trouble.
